

This collection of questions to ask someone can assist in building a relationship. Or start a conversation. There's nothing wrong with trying to get to know someone better. And beginning a conversation with a question is an easy way for two people to connect. And get to know each other easier.

The act of inquiring about another human is more than simply prompting them for information. It's about learning who someone is. Why are they here. Where their life is taking them. And how the two people can be closer. Starting an honest and open dialog with someone is a great practice to learn. Anyone can learn to start conversations more inclusively. And while listening to the other person, can do themselves a justice by expanding their view and learning about each other.

Questions to Ask Anyone (Get to Know You)

Questions to get to know someone. These questions are perfect for best friends (besties). Or for two new people who are aiming to get to know one another. This could be for co-workers, dates, friends, family, and more. Asking questions is a great way to get to know another person. Getting to know someone can be difficult. Questions make the process easier. And provide a platform to start a conversation.

Get to know someone questions (if you really want to know them)

Getting to know someone (anyone), can be hard. This could be a boy. A girl. A friend. A family friend. Or other. The way conversations are started can be the platform for how they continue. Learning to start conversations with the right type of initiation can mean a connective tissue that's valuable. Start from these prompts. And try to inquire more about the person you're speaking with. Be sure to listen intently. And practice active-listening.

1. What's your favorite TV show to watch?
2. If you could do anything for the rest of your life, what would you do?
3. Would you rather be poor and happy or rich and unhappy?
4. What's the craziest thing you've ever done as a kid?

5. If you could pick one talent to have, what would you want?
6. If you could be any superhero or fictional character, who would it be?
7. What's your dream job?
8. Who would you choose to say a speech at your wedding?
9. Which celebrity do people say you look like?
10. What's something important you've recently learned about life?
11. What does your ideal day look like?
12. Tell me what high school was like for you.
13. What's one thing you can't live without?
14. Who would you first say "hello" to at a family reunion?
15. If you could change one thing about yourself, what would it be?
16. What's the weirdest web site rabbit hole you've ever done down?
17. If you could have any superpower, what would it be and why?
18. What's the best pick-up line you've ever heard?
19. What's your favorite sports team?
20. Do you believe in chance and luck?

Random questions for family members or besties

Family is important in life. They are everything. Getting to know family is hard than it might seem. And while we may have grown up with our siblings or parents, asking them more about themselves can be a healthy practice. Try to sit down once a week. And ask your sibling, parent, or extended family member more about themselves. Try to listen closely. And learn who they are.

1. What's the best meal you've ever had?
2. Who is a person that you admire?
3. What things do you value in life?
4. What's your favorite movie of all time?
5. If you could go anywhere in the world, where would it be?
6. If you had three wishes, what would they be and why?
7. Say you had all the money in the world, what place would you live?
8. What goals do you have for your future family?
9. What's the most important thing to you in a friendship?
10. What's the most important thing you've learned from a celebrity?
11. What did you learn from our great grandparents?
12. Do you have a boyfriend/girlfriend?
13. How is school going?
14. What are your plans for after graduation?
15. How can our family celebrate holidays better?

16. Who is someone in our family we should reach out to more?
17. What's your favorite part of celebrating birthdays?
18. What would you like to do for your birthday this year?
19. When should we celebrate our family traditions?
20. What can we do for mom and dad as something special?

List of questions for colleagues

Getting to know a coworker can be difficult. Starting honest, open, and deep conversations can be a great way to connect with a fellow worker. It's surprising how connecting on a friendly level can lead to great work. Two or more people need to feel that initial "chemistry" between each other to move forward. Here are some ways to start a conversation with the people you work with. Great for starting a new job!

1. What's the most important thing you've learned in your current position?
2. What advice would you give someone trying to advance their career?
3. What was your favorite project when working here?
4. What are some of the most important things you've learned at the company?
5. Where would you want to work after working here?
6. What tips do you have for me going into my next meeting?
7. How do you like to have fun on the weekends?
8. If you could talk to any famous professional, who would it be and why?
9. Do you have a blog or do you write content online?
10. What's one mistake you've made here at work that you wish you could correct?
11. Which manager is your favorite manager to work with?
12. What projects are you currently working on?
13. What's the worst habit that you have that you want to break?
14. Would you consider yourself more of a saver or a spender?
15. What type of food would you eat for the rest of your life?